7. Description Of Incident

We were on starboard layline, in the zone. There were two boats on port. Hungarian boat (248) were in the zone, I am not sure about the German boat. I said starbord loud enough. German boat request for room to tack. Hungarian boat waited to give room to tack until they reached layline. That have been waiting with tack for around 5 seconds. To avoid contact with German boat we needed to luff. We changed the compass course from 002 degrees to 008 degrees. If not our response we would have hit the end of the starboard wing. After the luff I was above my proper course.
