7. Description Of Incident

GBR 4766 was heading downwind with their gennaker up. We were on the same tack (port tack) on our upwind. We hailed to them very often before the situation got close. They saw us but didn't react at first. When they reacted, they didn't avoid contact in time and not strong enough. So we had to tack immediately in the last moment, which caused our capsizes. It cost us some 15 places.
